What We Do
We’re developing a wearable remote medication monitor for the purpose of keeping patients on life-saving therapeutics. The first medication we’re focused on is methadone, which is used to treat opioid addiction. Methadone patients have to go to a clinic almost every day to get their medication in order to prove compliance. CARI’s wearable monitor would enable them to prove compliance remotely so they no longer have to visit the clinic every day. It’s life changing.
